AVIATION - WWII

CLIPPERS AT WAR

This amazing Kodachrome color film made for Pan-American World Airways in 1945 illustrates the contribution of the company's clipper airplanes and its dedicated employees throughout WW II. The company's founding, its development of travel bases in South America, the Pacific Ocean, and Atlantic Ocean set the stage for the attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, and the entry of the United States into WWII. Fully committed to winning the war Pan American Clipper Planes are shown in the vital role of supplying and transporting military personnel and dignitaries. Also shown are routes developed by Pan American being used as supply lines by all American and allied airlines to get troops and material to the front lines. From the sandy deserts of Africa to the tropics of Midway and Wake Island to the mysterious lands of China and India the clipper ships painted in wartime camouflage traverse the dangerous skies above enemy lands. With rarely seen color footage of the Flying Tiger P-40s, the Fairchild 91 Baby Clipper Amphibian, and the famous Cannonball Run Clipper Planes this film is a must for any vintage airplane or airline enthusiast. Beautiful color film of famous clipper airplanes such as the Sikorsky S-38, Sikorsky S-43, Douglas DC-3, Sikorsky S-42, Boeing 307 Stratoliner, Martin 130, Douglas DC-4, and Boeing 314 are shown throughout. A Bonus film made around 1940 in full color by Pan-American to promote travel to Rio via Pan Am Boeing 307 Clipper is included. 60 minutes. DVD707 $30

LOOK TO LOCKEED FOR LEADERSHIP

This amazing film traces the early years and founding of one of the worlds premier aviation manufactures, Lockheed Aircraft. Released just prior to World War II by Lockheed, this film shows the early commercial aircraft success of the company, as well as giving a complete list of the airlines throughout the world flying Lockheed airplanes. A tour of the factory in Burbank, California, with its 35,000 employees takes you through the concept, design, engineering, production, and testing phases of making the Electra, Twelve, and Loadstar commercial aircraft, as well as the military B-14 Hudson bomber and revolutionary P-38 fighter. A bonus film entitled "Age of Flight," filmed during World War II, adds even more depth to the understanding of why America remains to this day on the cutting edge of aircraft design. 50 minutes. DVD706 $20

WARBIRD CHECKOUTS, Volume 1

"Flying the P-40 Warhawk" COLOR! Also titled "Ways of the Warhawk," this complete check out of the WWII Curtis-Wright fighter made famous by the Flying Tigers is revealed in depth. "Flying the F4U Corsair" Checkout this familiar "bent" wing fighter that was still in production by 1952. "Flying the F6F Hellcat" Stalls, dives, landings and takeoffs are all part of this exciting flying experience. Sister to the Grumman TBF Avenger, it became unwelcome company to our enemies in the sky. "Flying the SB2A-4 Buccaneer" Without the quickness to stay alive on the front lines, the Buccaneer found its place in wartime as a scout plane. "Flying the TBF Avenger" This checkout features outstanding air-to-air photography depicting stalls and many other combat techniques of Grumman's popular WWII torpedo bomber. 2 hours. DV832 $25

WARBIRD CHECKOUTS, Volume 2

"Flying the Twin Engine P-38" COLOR! Considered the most exotic of the classic WWII fighters, the P-38 Lightning was assigned the hazardous job of escorting U.S. bombers over enemy territory in broad daylight. "Flying the B-25 Mitchell Bomber" Chosen by Jimmy Doolittle for the famous Tokyo raid, the B-25 had a 75-mm cannon in its nose and was one of America's best medium-class bombers. "Flying the Twin Boom P-61" This unusual three seat twin-engine night fighter, aptly named the Black Widow, sought out invisible targets with the sophisticated radar on board. "Flying the Twin Engine A-26" Appearing late in the war, the A-26 Invader of 1945 went on to serve in two more wars. Witness this "hot ship" flying adequately on just one of its R-2800 engines. 100 minutes. DV845 $25

WARBIRD CHECKOUTS, Volume 3

"Flying the P-51 Mustang" By mid-1944 the P-51 Mustang in its various modified forms was numerically the most important fighter in the 8th Fighter Command in England.

This complete checkout includes the guns, cockpit, and flight characteristics of the Mustang, along with stalls, spins, aerobatics, and high-altitude dives. Featured is the latest model of the P-51 line with a 1520 H.P. engine. "Flying the A-20 Bomber" The vintage 1940 Douglas twin-engined A-20 Havoc was the most famous in a long line of conventional light attack bomber aircraft. The checkout experience in the seldom seen A-20 is a rare flying treat. "Flying the P-39: Introduction" Familiar to many as the Airacobra. A promising aircraft, it fared poorly in its intended service, but was used in great quantities by the U.S. Army. This video checkout includes cockpit survey, ground handling, take-offs, normal flight and landings. "Flying the P-39: Advanced" This is how the experts do it, and it's the ultimate training film...the P-39 Airacobra in high-speed flight maneuvers, formation flying, aerobatics, and combat. Not for the faint of heart.

110 minutes.

WARBIRD CHECKOUTS, Volume 4

"Flying the P-47" (in three parts) In three exciting segments you will find almost anything you might ask about the famed Thunderbolt Fighter. Here is the detailed coverage that begins with pilot familiarization with the aircraft, ground handling, takeoff procedures, normal flight, landings, and concluding with high-altitude flight and aerobatics. It includes tips on what not to do. "Flying the T-6 (SNJ)" (in three parts) In three authentic segments this is how to fly the popular T-6 trainer. It details normal takeoff and landing, crosswind approaches, small field techniques, and of course, emergencies. The T-6 was called the SNJ by the Navy. 110 minutes.

WARBIRD CHECKOUTS, Volume 5

"B-29 Flight Procedures" This film instructs the pilot and crew on the aircraft and its incredible weapons system. It covers preflight, the R3350 engines, takeoffs, landings, and much more. "Preflight Inspection of the B-17 E" This preflight is divided into three parts. Exterior airframe, interior airframe inspection, and engine check. It covers what to look for: skin fabric, deicers, fuel tanks, cockpit, crew stations, props and the engine warm-up and operation. "Preflight Inspection of the B-24" The official "crew chief" guide to preflight inspecting the B-24 Liberator. Similar to the B-17 E. 107 minutes.
